

nursing students; his attention to clinical excellence was evident in all this work. Those who contributed to the books and had the opportunity to work with David realize the important role he played as a leader in nursing education for students and faculty. His clinical expertise provided a critical foundation for ensuring relevant and evidence-based content was used in all the Wong textbooks. David led by example in exemplifying excellence in clinical nursing practice.

Those who knew David well will miss his humor, loyalty to friends and colleagues, and his never-ending support. He is missed greatly by those who worked closely with him on the Wong textbook over the years. Most importantly we miss his friendship; he was always there to support and to encourage. We have lost an amazing nurse who worked effortlessly over the years to improve the care of children and families in need. David will not be forgotten.
