

2. A 10-year-old child with a peanut allergy would be expected to have which of these as an early manifestation of his allergy? Select all that apply.
- a. Wheezing
 - b. Nausea
 - c. Headache
 - d. Trouble breathing
 - e. Urticaria
3. The recommended treatment for cow's milk protein allergy is the substitution of cow's milk-based formula for:
- a. Goat's milk
 - b. Soy milk or a hydrolyzed formula
 - c. Whole milk
 - d. Evaporated milk
4. Identify the interventions that can be safely used to manage diaper dermatitis. Select all that apply.
- a. Blow dry heat on skin with hair dryer.
 - b. Apply a skin barrier paste such as zinc oxide.
 - c. Keep skin surface irritants such as urine and stool off skin.
 - d. Expose skin to air.
 - e. Use only cloth diapers.
5. Which factors are considered protective factors for sudden infant death syndrome (SIDS)?
- a. Side sleeping position, breastfeeding, updated childhood immunization status
 - b. Supine sleeping position, breastfeeding, soft bedding
 - c. Prone sleeping position, exposure to maternal tobacco use, updated childhood immunization status
 - d. Supine sleeping position, breastfeeding, updated childhood immunization status
6. A 3-month-old is being seen in the well-child clinic for positional plagiocephaly. The nurse knows that the initial interventions for this condition involve which of the following? Select all that apply.